

To whom it may concern,

As an electricity consumer, I don't want my bills to go up significantly due to the impact on my families finances and the broader economy.

The regulators role is to protect from these increases and to stop corporate capture of this decision.

Humelink is clearly becoming politicised and driven by corporate profit intentions rather than the greater good of lower electricity costs for the entire populace.

Kind regards

Jack